HEAR FROM MANY IN OHIO FLOODS

Former Gettysburg and Adams County Residents Send Word to their Relatives here that they Have Escaped Harm.

Telegrams telling of their safety are now being received here daily from former Gettysburg and Adams County residents who are living in the flooded districts of Ohio and Indiana.

On Sunday Mrs. Margaret Miller, of South Washington street, heard by telegram from her son, John W. Miller, of Columbus. It said, "We were in the flood but are all safe". Mr. Miller is married. His wife was formerly Miss Stella Niece, of York, and they have one child. Mr. Miller is employed in the chain works at Columbus. Mrs. Emory Cleveland of this place is a sister.

James Caldwell received a telegram on Sunday from J. T. Sullivan, a resident of Riverdale, Dayton, which said, "Safe and at home". Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan were former residents of Fairfield and lived in the section of Dayton which suffered heaviest from the high waters. Mr. Sullivan is a first cousin of Mrs. Caldwell.

C. A. Blocher heard from D. F. Garland, saying "We are safe and well". Mr. Garland and family live in Dayton and are well known here. Mrs. Garland being a daughter of Charles Comfort of Baltimore street, Mr. and Mrs. Comfort are absent from home but they have been notified of the safety of their relatives.

Miss Belle Cressler, a sister of Mrs. O. G. Klinger, formerly of Gettysburg, is teaching in the Elmhurst School at Connersville, Indiana. She has notified her mother in Chambersburg of her safety. Miss Cressler is well known in Gettysburg where she has been a frequent visitor.

Note was made several days ago of the telegrams received from Roy Deardorff, of Hamilton, Ohio, formerly of Cashtown, and Rev. N. S. Wolf, and family, of Dayton. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Tawney received a further telegram on Sunday from their son-in-law, Mr. Wolf, telling that they were safe and well. The telegram received Sunday was sent last Wednesday while that which arrived Saturday was sent the same day—it was received showing a general tie-up on telegrams during the earlier part of the week, which has now been relieved.

Charles A. Trostel, son of Hon. G. H. Trostel, of York Springs, has notified his parents through his brother, Dr. Elmer Trostel, of York, that he fled from Hamilton, Ohio, at the time of the flood and reached Cincinnati in safety.

Luther Sowers, of 138 West Middle street, heard by telegram on Sunday from his son, Royce A. Sowers, who has been living in Dayton for several years. The message said "We are all safe". He is a carpenter in Dayton and also conducts a confectionery store.

STUDENTS' PLAY

Sophomores at College Gave Play on Saturday Evening.

"The Importance of being Earnest" was presented by members of the Sophomore Class of College in Brua Chapel Saturday evening before an appreciative audience. The stage settings were the product of Mr. Baker, a member of the class and a son of Rev. C. W. Baker, of New Oxford. They were elaborate and much admired.

Donald Ikeler, as leading man, is decidedly one of the best amateurs the college has produced and his work Saturday evening stood out prominently. The play was produced at the expense of a great deal of time and energy on the part of players and "executive staff" who were under the direction of F. W. Moser, assistant in English.

CENTENNIAL STATION

New Railway Siding about to be Placed and Business Resumed.

In 1876, Centennial station, along the Western Maryland railroad, on the farm of Solomon Hoke, was established, and for about 30 years the owner was actively engaged in the lime and stone business. Under a lease to E. M. Bittinger, a new railway siding is about to be placed, and business resumed, under the name of Centennial Lime and Stone Co.

FREE LECTURE

Mrs. Monroe will Tell of Conditions in the Slums.

Mrs. H. E. Monroe, of Washington, D. C., will deliver a lecture in the Seminary Chapel this Monday, evening at 7:30 on "The Transformation of the Slums". The lecture will be open to the public.

ANNIVERSARY BILLS ARE UP

House of Representatives Has Two Large Gettysburg Appropriation Bills up for Consideration. Farmers' Bills also.

When the House of Representatives meets this evening it will have before it on first reading the two bills to provide the funds for the participation of Pennsylvania in the celebration of the semi-centennial of the battle of Gettysburg on the battlefield next summer. These bills were reported from the House appropriations committee without change last week.

One bill, presented by Mr. Ely, Westmoreland, provides $165,000 for the transportation of veterans to and from the battlefield. The provisions of the bill being that only veterans shall be transported at State expense. The other, introduced by Mr. Watson, Indiana, appropriates $195,000 representing the balance of the $250,000 which Pennsylvania is pledged to appropriate for the celebration under its agreement with the United States Government, Congress having made an appropriation by act of August 26, 1912.

The preparations for the great camp are well under way, being in charge of H. F. Dalton, of the quartermaster's department of the United States army. This camp is to care for 40,000 veterans and will open at supper on June 26 and close after breakfast on July 6. The plans are to serve 800,000 meals to the veterans, allowance being made for 20 for each man. This will require 800 cooks and as many helpers and 125 bakers, the baking to be done in the field bakeries and the preparation of the meals to be done in the field kitchens.

Pennsylvania will allot space in the camp by States, the commissioner for each State being in charge of the subdivision of space assigned to him.

Bills for Farmers.

The farmer is to be well taken care of in some of the calendared bills. There are bills for a country commission to make life on the farm attractive to the boys, to provide lime, trees, raspberry bushes, seeds and grape vines shall be sold under guarantees with the State supervision and that they shall have the right to call in the constable with his star to force the owner of a tree full of San Jose scale, woolly aphid or collar rot to cut them down. The bill of Mr. Burnett, of Cumberland, would make it mandatory for all cedar trees within a mile of an apple orchard to be chopped down if cedar rust should be found in the orchard, while the constable and the township supervisor are required to go out and root up the daisy, the wild parsnip and the burdock where they become a nuisance.

Meat is to be placed under new inspection by a couple of bills and rates to be paid for the slaughter of the mild-eyed cow when she develops tuberculosis are set forth in another about twenty-five pages in size.

WARMER WEEK

Temperatures Above and Precipitation Below Normal Predicted.

Temperatures above the seasonal average over most of the country, with precipitation generally below in the North and near normal in the South, probably will prevail during the coming week, according to the Weather Bureau's weekly bulletin.

"No pronounced cold wave will cross the country during the week," the bulletin predicts. "Frequent rains are probable on the Pacific coast as far south as northern California. A disturbance central Sunday morning in the northwest will move eastward along the northern border and cause unsettled weather and local rains at the beginning of the week in the region east of the Mississippi River."

Another disturbance will appear in the Far West Tuesday, cross the Middle West Wednesday, and the Eastern States Thursday or Friday. This disturbance will be attended by general rains and be followed by a change to cooler weather.

EARLY START FOR APRIL 1 BUSINESS

Saturday and Monday See Large Influx of Country People here to Attend to the Business of Annual Settlement Day.

Gettysburg's April first business this year has already started with a rush and the town banks and the offices of the Court House have had several busy days attending to the early comers who wished to transact their matters before the final rush of Tuesday.

Spring settlement day really started this year on Saturday and the town had one of its busiest days for several months. A number of the town merchants reported heavy sales and in one instance a store keeper announced the best business since he has been in Gettysburg. Spring shopping was indulged in by the visitors' wives while the men attended to their affairs and many a summer outfit was sold during the day and in the evening the townspeople turned out.

To-day was another busy one for the stores, banks and county officials preparatory to the further rush of Tuesday and indications now point to the best April first business in the town's history.

The presence of banks in many of the county towns is also making the season a busier one there than five years ago and every community feels the influence of the spring settlement custom which has come to be an established part of the county's life.

FATAL W. M. WRECK

Engineer and Fireman Killed and Four Injured in Collision.

As a result of a head-on collision between Western Maryland passenger train No. 8, and a west-bound freight train, at Bidwell, Pa., 67 miles west of Cumberland, shortly before midnight Saturday, two railroad men are dead. Two passengers and two other railroad employees were injured.

James R. Shepherd, of Cumberland, engineer of the passenger train, died Sunday afternoon at the Connellsville Hospital. He was scalded by escaping steam from his engine.

J. J. Hotchkiss, of Ridgely, W. Va., fireman of the passenger train, was scalded and died Sunday morning at the Connellsville Hospital.

The passenger train in charge of Conductor James Buskirk, Cumberland, was running on time and had the right of way of the track. The west-bound freight train, in charge of Conductor H. M. Benedict, Cumberland, and Engineer Mower and Fireman Campbell, attempted to pull in on a siding. A coupling broke and a portion of the train was left on the main track.

The engine went back after the missing section. The flagman says he took every precaution to head off the passenger train, using fuse and lantern. It is thought the attention of Shepherd, who was regarded as a careful engineer, had been diverted by something about his engine. When picked up he was unable to speak. He was a member of the Old Lodge of Masons. Hotchkiss was married.

DECORATE CAMPUS

Students Take Early Morning Hours to Litter Campus with Paper.

College Campus was extensively decorated during the early hours this morning by some energetic individuals who strung festoons of paper from a score or more trees, scattered more of the same material over the ground, then departed leaving their handiwork for the admiration of the waking learning-seekers several hours later. The entire main campus was decorated and in a brisk west wind the streamers floated out gracefully. The lamp post in the centre had a few extra touches and the whole task must have required considerable time and energy. Whether or not the decorators got their dates mixed and believed the day was April first is not known.

NO DOUBLE POSTAGE

DEAD IN OHIO LESS THAN 500

Fatalities in Dayton Not More Than 150.

CITY UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Forty Thousand Persons Must Be Fed and Sheltered For a Week and 20,000 For a Longer Period.

Investigations tended to confirm the estimates of fewer than 500 deaths in the floods that swept over a score of cities in Ohio and Indiana last week.

As the waters receded from Dayton, Columbus and other places, leaving a thick coating of mud, alarm was caused by a rapid rise of the Ohio and the Mississippi rivers, inundating parts of cities along their banks. There is not much danger of loss of life in these places, however, as the inhabitants have hills to flee to and are used to floods.

Revised reports indicate that the number of drowned in Dayton may not exceed 150, although there are those who say the number will be much greater.

The death list at Piqua, Ohio, fell off from the estimate of fifty to twelve known dead.

Conditions in Dayton.

Dayton, Ohio, March 31.—With the water in the flooded rivers rapidly falling to their normal stage this city has a tremendous task on hand.

The officials say the death list will not reach 500, while those in charge of the morgues estimate the dead at 250. Others equally familiar with the situation, especially those active in the rescue work and the search for bodies, insist that the number of dead will not exceed 150.

Here is the problem presented to Dayton, as summarized by George F. Burba, secretary to Governor Cox, and representing the latter in Dayton: Forty thousand persons must be fed, clothed and housed for a week more.

Twenty thousand persons must be cared for indefinitely. These are persons who lost their all when their household goods were swept away. They must be provided with a few necessary household articles, such as bedding, pots and pans, stoves and a few dollars. A half million dollars could be used in this way by the relief committee. Fifteen thousand houses and other structures, or what remains of them, must be pulled down.

Thousands of tons of debris must be removed.

Following are some of the accomplishments since the flood broke over Dayton:

The water works pumping station is in operation, but the distribution of water is greatly retarded by open pipes in wrecked houses. The pressure is feeble, but growing stronger as leaks are checked.

The main sanitary sewer is in operation, although many of the laterals leading from houses are clogged with mud and backed up water.

Telephone service is fast catching up with requirements, which have been and are still enormous.

No braver services have been performed than those by the telephone and telephone linemen, who made possible the dissemination of news to hundreds of thousands of friends and relatives of Daytonians. They waded and swam icy floods and entered tottering buildings unhesitatingly in pursuit of their duty.

John H. Patterson, chairman of the general committee, found operators who had not removed shoes or clothing since last Tuesday. There is enough food and clothing for present needs, but relief will be required on a diminishing scale for at least another month.

Chairman Patterson announced that W. F. Phipps will act as treasurer for all contributions and will make a strict accounting to all contributors.

By order of Governor Cox the reign of martial law over Dayton was extended to take in the whole county. The flood did more than sweep away property, for it swept away the city administration, temporarily at least, and brought in what amounts to a commission form of government.

The extension of the area under martial law developed from action taken by local dealers, whose places are closed. They complained that saloons in the outskirts were sending whisky into the city and that considerable drunkenness had been observed. Adjutant General Wood reported the situation to the governor and his action was prompt and decisive.

Coroner J. W. McKemey estimated that 100 bodies have been recovered, though there are records of only 72. He said that many had been buried without usual official action and that in many cases he did not expect to get records.

Hundreds of persons still looking for relatives, passed along the line at the morgues, fearing they should find their loved ones there. Only a few bodies have not been identified.

Eight persons suffering from diphtheria are at the Miami Valley hospital. Seven of them were caught in a house with a person who had recently become ill with the disease. Four persons hemmed in with one who had the measles are suffering with that disease.

FLOOD WRECKAGE.

How Houses Were Wrecked and Tossed About by Great Floods.

EMERGING FROM FLOOD

75 to 100 Dead and $1,000,000 Damage in Columbus, O.

Columbus, O., March 31.—As in other Ohio cities conditions here as a result of the Scioto river floods have been greatly exaggerated.

The death list will run from 75 to 100 in all probability. The property loss will exceed $1,000,000. The water has receded to a point where nearly all the inhabitants of the inundated sections, whose homes were not completely destroyed, may return to them.

The district affected embraces a large extent of territory to the west and southwest of the state house, where mostly working people live. Hundreds of homes were swept from their foundations and some were carried down the river. The flood will require the rebuilding of thousands of other houses. The finer residences and business sections escaped damage. Thousands of people were taken from perilous positions and hundreds of heroic rescues are reported.

It is estimated that 150 births took place during the period the west side was flooded. Births are known to have taken place in boats, and one is reported to have occurred in a tree. A year-old baby, wrapped in a blanket, was washed ashore in front of the gates of the state institution for feeble minded.

Although chilled by the water the child was soon revived. Placed to its underclothing was a piece of paper, upon which the name "Walter Taylor" was written. The boy was restored to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Taylor, twenty-four hours later.

The family had been penned in their home for two days. As the water rose gradually the parents moved to the second floor and then to the attic. Finally the father was forced to hold the child for hours above his head. Climbing out to the roof as a last resort, the baby was swept away and the parents never expected to see it alive again.

The sum of $50,000 has been raised by voluntary contributions to a relief fund. In addition the city council voted $75,000, and great stores of provisions and clothing have been contributed by local people and outsiders. Thousands of the homeless people have been cared for in homes of those willing to share them or in public halls. The thousands have been fed daily in the Masonic Temple.

CO. DEAD IN INDIANA

Water Coming Around Indianapolis, But Rising Along the Ohio.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 31.—Sixty lives are known to have been lost in the Indiana floods, which have almost disappeared in the central portion of the state, but still threaten Evansville and the smaller cities along the Ohio river.

Verified reports show that fifty-six persons were drowned and four are known to have died from exposure. Flood devastated Indiana cities reported, authentically, wealth lists as follows:

Peru, 20; Brookville, 16; Fort Wayne, 6; Terre Haute, 4; Washington, 4; Frankfort, 2; Logansport, 1; Rushville, 1; Muncie, 1; West Indianapolis, 1; Lafayette, 1; New Castle, 1; East Mount Carmel, 1; Shelby, 1. Peru and Brookville death lists are those of drownings, but two deaths at Terre Haute, one at Fort Wayne and the only verified fatality in West Indianapolis followed exposure suffered by the refugees. Undoubtedly the list will be more or less extensively augmented during the next few days. Indications being that the river channels still buried by high waters hold some bodies.

Piqua Slowly Recovering.
Piqua, Ohio, March 31.—Piqua is slowly recovering from the flood that is estimated to have cost fifty lives and hundreds of thousands of dollars' property damage. West of Main street the town is again normal, but East Piqua, a residence district around which the Miami river curves, and over which the flood waters surged, is a tangle of demolished houses.

J. P. MORGAN CRITICALLY ILL

Noted American Financier is Sinking Fast.

MUST BE FED ARTIFICIALLY

He is Losing Strength Rapidly. But Does Not Suffer Pain and Dozes Constantly.

Rome, March 31.—Professor Bastianelli and Dr. Dixon, who are in attendance on J. P. Morgan, issued an alarming bulletin as to the condition of the noted financier. The bulletin stated that Mr. Morgan's condition was "most critical."

This came as a great surprise, as inquirers were assured only two or three hours before that Mr. Morgan's condition was the same as on Saturday and the previous days. He sleeps a good deal and is resting easily.

It was added that Dr. N. Allen Starr, who is traveling in Italy with his family, on arriving in Rome would see Mr. Morgan (who is an old friend of his) and consult with Professor Bastianelli and Dr. Dixon and issue a statement with "the object of settling the alarming rumors of the last two days."

After visiting Mr. Morgan and holding a conference with three physicians, Bastianelli, Starr and Dixon issued the following signed statement: "A week ago Mr. Morgan was persuaded to go to bed and remain there in order to conserve his strength. Until Wednesday he did very well under this regime. He rested and slept without drugs and took a satisfactory amount of nourishment. On Wednesday afternoon he began to refuse his food and since then it has been impossible to nourish him. He has lost weight and strength rapidly. His nervous system is showing this added strain seriously. He has not developed any organic trouble, but is so exceedingly weak that his present condition must be considered most critical."

Herbert L. Satterlee, Mr. Morgan's son-in-law, said that there was absolutely no imminent danger of the death of the great financier. Although he was weak he was doing constantly. The artificial nourishment seemed to keep him going and arrangements for his removal were made, but when the doctors again visited him his weakness was more acute and they were compelled to regard his condition as critical, not because hope had been lost, but owing to this decreased vitality the danger of collapse could not be overlooked. For this reason the official bulletin was issued and two bulletins will be issued every day hereafter.

Mr. Morgan, said Mr. Satterlee, is unable to swallow food, owing to a certain nerve which does not act, and therefore he has to be fed artificially. In view of his strong constitution he may overcome the crisis, but while in his present weak condition, if he takes cold, he is bound to get pneumonia and die within forty-eight hours. He is now in a comatose condition. He is not exactly unconscious, but is sleeping all the time, except when he is awakened regularly every two hours for artificial feeding. He does not suffer any pain, according to Mr. Satterlee. "It is," he said, "the struggle of a strong man whose health is slowly ebbing. His resistance is great, and hence we hope we will pull through, but after all he is seventy-six and is naturally getting weaker. His removal from Rome is now out of the question, and the order for a special train has been countermanded."

Mr. Satterlee reiterated that the danger of death was not imminent. Even if he does not recover, he said, Mr. Morgan will last for several days, and anyway his death will be painless and peaceful.

CONVICT FLEES BY SEWER

Two Companions, Overcome by Gas, Are Found Unconscious.

Leavenworth, Kan., March 31.—Clyde Stratton, serving a five-year sentence in the federal prison at Fort Leavenworth for the robbery of the postoffice at McCool, Ind., fled by crawling a mile through the prison sewer.

Two other prisoners, who made the attempt with Stratton, were overcome by sewer gas and were pulled out of the sewer unconscious. When revived they declared that Stratton had escaped.

The Scrap Book

No Place For a Sailor.

The Rev. Mr. Payson was invited by the Marine Bible society of Portland, Me., to address the seamen who happened to be in port on a certain Sunday, and as he was famous as a preacher and there were several of Uncle Sam's warships in the harbor the church was overcrowded with Jack tars.

Temporary seats were erected in the aisles and at the rear of the pews by putting dry goods boxes here and there and stringing boards across them like rude circus seats.

The preacher was describing the day of the last judgment and in an endeavor to use language suitable to his audience was closing his sermon with the words, "Then out slid down to the world, driven by the last tempest, will strike and be dashed to pieces on the rocks of eternity."

The last words were hardly uttered when one of the boards gave way under the weight of its occupants with a resounding crash.

"She has struck!" yelled a sailor in the gallery, and he promptly threw himself over the rail and, wrapping one leg around a pillar, slid down to the lower floor. "I ain't going to be on no hurricane deck in a wreck!" he cried as he ran for the street—New York American.

Our Purpose Here.

You ask me, oh, sincere friend, What is our purpose here? While passing days may onward trend And year supplanteth year?

What purpose largest place should hold In heart and life and plan? What is a soul's most treasured gold In this the sphere of man?

The answer is not hard to see. Has it escaped your view, And have you learned so scant of me And I so small of you?

Oh, kindly friend, the answer seen, Like stars that shine above, Is this, and only this, I ween: We live that we may love.

—Douglas Dobbin.

An Intelligent Goat.

In the old days, when New York's Harlem was mostly rock and was known as Gontville after some of its most conspicuous inhabitants, the New York Central railroad trains would pass bowled after bowled pointed over with advertisements in vivid colors.

J. Kierston Morgan, younger than he is now, was riding out of the depot with a friend when his hat, blowing off, was seized by a vagrant goat, which began to devour it. The friend was too much amused to offer any sympathy.

"Deuced intelligent goat that!" he said. "See how he obeys the orders of the owner of the field." And he pointed to a large sign that read, "Chew Morgan's Plug."—New York

FLOOD AREA CLEARING

Conditions in Western Pennsylvania Are Slowly Improving.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 31.—Western Pennsylvania is slowly recovering from the effects of the most general and disastrous flood in its history. Greater damage than ever before was done to property, more lives were taken and more homes made desolate. Now that the danger is past the vast flood-submerged section is gradually clearing of waters.

Many persons are counting and burying their dead, relieving the homeless and destitute, gathering up fragments of ruined property and planning for the future.

Pittsburgh's monetary loss is at least $1,000,000. The steel industry is paralyzed for the time, many plants being submerged. Two months will pass before all operations are again resumed.

Work of the ghouls in the Shenango and Mahoning valleys has been stepped in response to an appeal from Mayor Charles Kennedy, of New Brighton, a company of the state constabulary arrested six men, charged with robbing houses and bodies. The ghouls were driven out by Sharon and New Castle police.

The property loss in Wheeling, W. Va., is estimated at $5,000,000. The loss in Youngstown, Ohio, is approximately $2,000,000. The Shenango, Mahoning, Beaver and Ohio valleys show heart sickening scenes of desolation. Along rivers and smaller streams are strewn the wreckage of homes and factories, many of whose owners, after years of labor to accumulate a competence, must start out penniless again.

Every wooden bridge in the flooded region has been washed away, and many steel spans are weakened. Telephone and telegraph wires are down.

FIVE DEAD AT WHEELING

The Water Recedes After Reaching 51 Feet and 5 Inches.

Wheeling, W. Va., March 31.—The waters of the Ohio river, which have held this city in their muddy grasp the past five days, receded after reaching a stage of 51 feet and 5 inches.

The flood was the most disastrous in half a century, and the damage done in Wheeling alone is estimated to be $2,000,000. Ten thousand people have been cared for daily by the city and charitable associations. The fatalities were increased to fifty when John O'Hara was drowned from a row boat. Twenty-five thousand men in the Wheeling district have been forced out of employment by the water.

Chillicothe Death List 15.

Chillicothe, Ohio, March 31.—Thus far there are fifteen known dead from the flood in this city. The waters have receded, but the afflicted districts are badly in need of relief in the form of food and clothing.

The looting problem is one of difficulty for the authorities. Notwithstanding their efforts much looting was reported.

The town of Richmond, having a population of 250 inhabitants, was literally wiped from the map. Jesse Brandon, who was plowing in a field, was swept away and drowned. Ten other lives were lost in the village and vicinity.

Near Omega, a few miles south of Chillicothe, Mr. and Mrs. Hatfield and seven children were drowned when their home, barn and all their other buildings were swept down before the rapidly rising waters.

MISSISSIPPI TO INUNDATE VALLEY

Rise Along the Entire River is Predicted.

Washington, March 31.—Floods in the Ohio and Mississippi rivers will extend practically all the way to New Orleans, according to a forecast by Professor Henry, of the flood division of the weather bureau.

The crest of the Ohio river flood is at Parkersburg, W. Va., where the highest water in the history of that city is reached.

At Cairo, Ill., the reading was 59.6 feet, 5 1/2 feet above the flood stage. This volume of water will cause floods past Memphis, according to the calculations of Uncle Sam's experts. It makes a tremendous volume of water in the Mississippi and it is likely to go higher.

No prediction as to the severity of the Mississippi floods will be made by Professor Henry. He is certain, however, that the river will be in the flood stage past Memphis and probably to New Orleans.

The crest of the flood will reach Memphis in two weeks. There is practically no change in predictions. River men feel certain that the stage will exceed that of 1912, when all previous records were broken. Fear is now expressed concerning the levee at Modoc. Gangs have been sent there to raise it, but planters fear that this may do no good. A crevasse is possible there because of the new gap fished last fall and winter.

TAFT LEAVES AUGUSTA, GA.

He Goes to New Haven, Conn., Tomorrow.

Augusta, Ga., March 31.—After a trip to Augusta lasting from the 5th of March until last evening, ex-President Taft and party left Augusta for the north.

The ex-president will spend tonight with his brother, Henry W. Taft, in New York, and then go on to New Haven tomorrow morning.

There was a large number of people at the depot to bid Mr. Taft good-bye, and he expressed himself as being deeply touched with the manner in which he has been treated in Augusta. During the past few weeks Mr. Taft and his immediately family have been the guests of the people of Augusta, all their expenses have been defrayed by local citizens and an automobile and chauffeur placed at the former president's disposal.

BANK BANDIT SOON SLAIN

Shot Down by Post Office Men After Killing Cashier.

Barnes, Kan., March 31.—Robert I. Brown, cashier of the Barnes State bank, was shot and killed by a man who robbed the institution.

Later a posse of citizens shot the robber to death as he was trying to make his escape with a bag of $600 in gold.

Brown had just opened the bank and was at the counter when he was confronted by a masked man, who pointed two revolvers at him. Brown ducked, seized his own revolver and had emptied it without effect before a bullet through the head killed him.

The thief gathered into a bag $600 and ran from the bank, but citizens, alarmed by the shots, were in pursuit before he had covered a block. Within three blocks of the bank he fell before a volley of shots, still clutching the gold.

A DUCAL SEPARATION

The Duchess of Westminster and Her Duke to Part.

London, March 31.—Another ducal separation, long predicted, has been formally arranged. The Duke and the Duchess of Westminster have definitely decided to part company altogether.

The terms of the arrangement, their friends say, are that the duchess will have $70,000 a year settled upon her, and will also get the town house on the Grosvenor estate, in Mayfair, and the duke's second country house, Halkyn, Flintshire.

The two children—Lady Ursula, eleven years old, and Lady Mary, aged three years—are to divide their time equally between the parents. In ordinary circumstances, both being girls the duchess would have had the exclusive right to them.

Paper Mill Worker Smothered by Rolls Hackensack, N. J., March 31.—John Grovanis, thirty years old, employed in a paper mill in Bogota, was caught between two rolls of paper and was smothered to death. A wrinkle in the paper rolls caused one of the men to investigate and Grovanis's legs were found protruding from between the rolls. The plant was closed after the accident.

Three Thaw Indictments.

New York, March 31.—It was learned at the district attorney's office that at least three indictments would be returned against those alleged to be concerned in attempts to obtain Harry K. Thaw's release from the Matteawan asylum by means of bribery.

Loss of Legs Fatal.

Allentown, Pa., March 31.—From having his legs severed in a railroad accident, Eugene Arnold, a car inspector, aged fifty-five years, died in the Allentown hospital. He was the sole support of his aged mother, who always loved his shoes, because a previous accident had crippled his arm.

Breaks Arm Catching Ball.

Pottsville, Pa., March 31.—The season's first base ball accident at this place occurred to Theodore Leib. In pulling down a fly he drew his arm too far backward, while on the dead run, and the bones snapped.

Prince of Wales to Make Air Trip.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, March 31.—The Prince of Wales is expected to make an ascent in the new military Zeppelin dirigible, which completed its trial trips successfully over Lake Constance.

DYING, HE TELLS OF BOMB PLOTS

Man Injured by Own Device Admits Killing Two.

CLEAR TWO SUSPECTS

He Sends For the Police Officials and Confesses It All Just Before the End Comes.

New York, March 31.—Propped up with pillows on his cot in the Fordham hospital and with his failing breath coming in convulsive gasps, Henry J. Klotz, the draughtsman in the office of Borough President Miller, of the Bronx, who was mortally injured on March 21 by the premature explosion of a bomb he was making, confessed that he had constructed and sent the infernal machines which had caused the deaths of Mrs. Grace Walker and Mrs. Madeline Herrera and blew up the apartment of General Sessions Judge Otto A. Rosalsky. His death followed within a few minutes of the completion of the narrative.

The confession was made voluntarily after the surgeons had notified Klotz that he had but a few hours to live. It came too soon, for when the police arrived just such a street as the one on which the explosion occurred, weak to be questioned at any length, and they were forced to confine themselves to getting the bare facts. Any undue excitement would have caused immediate death, hence much of the story remained untold when the draughtsman, with a sigh of relief, announced that he had made his peace with his maker and said good-bye to those surrounding his deathbed.

The admission by Klotz that he sent the Herrera and Rosalsky bombs clears John Paul Farrell, now confined in the Tombs for the murder of Mrs. Herrera, and exonerates a man who for months has been suspected of having mailed the Rosalsky machine, which mailed Inspector Owen Eagan, of the bureau of combustibles. Farrell will be discharged on the homicide count immediately, but he will be held on the charge of impairing the morals of young boys.

Even to the last Klotz played the Jekyll-Hyde role which he assumed years ago before he became employed in the topographical bureau of the Bronx, completely hoodwinking his employers and family. Up to the moment he was sure he could not live he protested that at the time the bomb he was manufacturing exploded, tearing away part of one arm and perforating his right lung, he was merely experimenting with smokeless powder.

When he felt death approaching he sent for Captain Price, of the Bronx detective bureau, and while he lay propped up by pillows and strengthened from time to time with restoratives, told Price that he had sent a bomb to Grace Walker because he had quarreled with her; that he had planned to murder Judge Rosalsky because he didn't approve of Rosalsky's course in the case of Braden, Mortimer Schiff's valet, from what he had read in the newspapers, and that the bomb which destroyed Mrs. Herrera was for experimental purposes.

The elder Klotz, shaken with grief, withdrew and remained out of the room until the confession was ended by the dying man's weakness. At the outset of his statement Klotz was barely able to talk. Frequently he had to pause for strength to continue.

First of all, he asked Captain Price not to reveal certain episodes of his life that had nothing to do with the bombs, but which had come incidentally to the knowledge of the detectives. The promise was made and kept. For the next twenty minutes he answered questions or spoke to the nurses.

TO EXAMINE MRS. EATON

Physicians to Pass on Sanity of Alleged Poisoner of Husband.

Plymouth, Mass., March 31.—Mrs. Jennie May Eaton, indicted as the murderer of her husband, Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton, by administering poison, is to be examined as to her sanity, according to statements given out by District Attorney Barker and Judge Kelley, counsel for Mrs. Eaton.

"Mrs. Eaton will be examined as to her sanity. I cannot state at present if I shall ask for the appointment of a lunacy commission or whether I will rely upon the pall physicians," said District Attorney Barker.

Pope Pius Much Better.

Rome, March 31.—Pope Pius felt much better and for the first time since the beginning of his recent indisposition remained up until after dark. Having heard of the illness of J. Pierpont Morgan, his holiness made inquiries and was much relieved in learning that Mr. Morgan's condition was satisfactory.

Preacher Turns Under-Taker.

Easton, Pa., March 31.—The congregation of Christ Lutheran church was completely surprised when the pastor, Rev. Elmer E. Snyder, announced his resignation, to take effect May 11. After the services he explained that he intended to retire from ministerial pursuits and would enter a local undertaking firm.

Humiliated Hubby.

A newly married couple had had a little disagreement about some cakes which the wife had made. The husband complained that those his mother used to produce were far superior. On the next day the girl set before him a plate of hot cakes.

"Now you have achieved something!" he exclaimed enthusiastically. "These are exactly like what mother used to make. How did you do it?"

"I will give you the recipe," replied the wife coldly. "I used margarine instead of butter, eggs a year old, I put alum in the flour and added plenty of water to the milk."—London Tit-Bits.

WHO WAS SHE?

By F. A. MITCHEL

There has always been to me something impressive in a street at night when all are in bed. Perhaps it is the contrast between its quiet and the life there was in it during the day.

I had recently begun the practice of medicine, and, having been called up at midnight to visit a patient not far from my house, had chosen to walk rather than get out a vehicle. I returned through just such a street as the one I have described, and, walking along on the sidewalk, was impressed with the solemnity of the rows of dark houses with their slumbering inhabitants. It seemed to me like a cemetery for beings whose consciousness was suspended every night during the same hours. So silent was it that my footfalls sounded loud enough to wake the sleepers.

Suddenly, while passing the portal of a church, from above came the clang of a clock striking the hour. So loud was it, so out of keeping with the prevailing stillness, that my heart seemed to stand still for a moment; then I braced myself against the next stroke. But it did not come. I wished it would for there again was the silence, and silence is not natural to a human being. We require sound and motion. These are the two conditions without either of which we suffer.

My route lay through an open square used as a park. In its center was a fountain, and about the fountain were benches. The fountain was still, and the seats were unoccupied. Something in this condition of a city in suspended consciousness so attracted me that I was minded to give myself up for a few minutes to its influence. I sat down on one of the benches and lost myself in fancy. On the four sides of the quadrangle were dwellings and not a light to be seen in any dwelling. All within were sunk in oblivion. Surely death could be no more of nothingness than this brief period of slumber. I was the only life being within the square.

Whether the god of sleep, annoyed at one rebellious subject among so many who were obedient, touched me that I should fall under his sway or whether some other of the many gods who preside over our transit through life thought proper to hypnotize me I do not know. That I grew drowsy I well remember. I am sure I nodded. Catching myself after a nod, I looked about me, and there sitting on the other end of the bench was a young girl. There were city lamps burning and I could see her features quite plainly. She was very pretty, but pale. Her hair was not coiled upon her head, but hung loose on her shoulders—not scattered, but in separate locks. Her dress was that of the lower middle class.

Somehow it did not seem to me that the conditions I have described were broken by the girl's presence. I did not feel that there were two persons where there had been one. Yet there sat the girl looking out on the trees in the park or the buildings beyond just as I did. It occurred to me that she must have come there during a brief interval when I had lost consciousness through sleep.

But how strange that she should be there at all! A young girl sitting in a park in the center of a city between 1 and 2 o'clock at night when every one else was in bed and asleep! It occurred to me to speak to her, but so unaccountably the circumstance of our being there alone together that I dreaded to do so. I dreaded lest she should fail to break the spell by replying to me. In that case I should feel that I was sitting by a supernatural being, and the very thought caused a shudder.

While I was trying to make up my mind to speak to the girl I noticed something else about her that excited a new wonder. This was that she resembled me. The discovery increased the feeling that she was not real, but a shade. Once or twice in my life I have dreamed that I saw myself in duplicate and have always awakened with a horrible feeling and a rapid beating of the heart. But this time I was not dreaming. I was sure of that I had been drowsy. I had nodded, but now I was thoroughly awake.

I was interested. My companion did not seem to me as a sister, but as I myself would have been had I been born a girl. I judged that she was my age. Her hair and eyes were exactly the same color as mine. Her features were all mine except that they were feminine while mine were masculine. If I had had a twin sister I should have believed this girl to be she. Finally I made up my mind to speak to her. "Isn't it rather late?"

I got no further. At the first break of the silence she was gone. Wondering, I arose and went home.

At the medical college where I graduated was a professor who was a deep student and thinker, having some strange theories in what some persons call the supernatural. To him I went and told my strange experience and asked him for an explanation. He was much interested in it, but gave no opinion regarding it at the time. Later he sent for me and said:

"There are evidences on the human body that we were once bisexual. I have thought much of your vision, but can offer no explanation except through fancy. May not what you saw have some connection with a double feminine self, which the condition induced by your surroundings, enabled you to discern?"

"Where did you get that metaphysical, my dear?"

"Why, at Martin's. Isn't it lovely?" And such a bargain. It was marked "half off." Did you see the tag?"

"Yes, but I thought the tag referred to the clothing."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SEE OUR STOVES

This is the time of year the good housekeeper wants to install a new range. It saves the dirt and fuss of installation after house-cleaning. We will have a busy summer—so busy that you cannot afford to be hampered by a wornout range.

We have selected a line of stoves with a view to meeting the requirements of the local trade.

"PERFECT BAKING AT LOWEST COST"

is the slogan for these stoves.

The oven and firebox in these Ranges are so constructed that you get splendid work with mighty little fuel. Never fill firebox over half full. Save the other half for the next day. Come in and let us show you some other reasons why you should buy one.

Coal! Coal! Coal!

I still have about 100 tons of coal of the wreck left. On account of the big rain we will be unable to get in for a few days, until it dries off. Should anyone want any of the coal please drop me a card or 'phone me the amount wanted.

FALL OF THE INCAS.

Fate of the Great Race That Has Left Only Traces Behind.

What became of the people who built the Cuzeo ruins? Were they the ancestors of those stolid and down-trodden Indians whom one sees today peddling their rude wares in the market place of Cuzeo? Mr. Bryce discusses the question in his "South America." He says:

"The sudden fall of a whole race is an event so rare in history that one seeks for explanations. It may be that not only the royal Inca family, but nearly the whole ruling class, was destroyed in war, leaving only the peasants, who had already been serfs under their native sovereigns. But one is disposed to believe that the tremendous catastrophe which befell them in the destruction at once of their dynasty, their empire and their religion by fierce conquerors, incomparably superior in energy and knowledge, completely broke not only the spirit of the nation, but the self respect of the individuals who composed it."

"They were already a docile and submissive people, and now under a new tyranny, far harsher than that of rulers of their own blood, they sank into hopeless apathy and ceased to remember what their forefathers had been. The intensity of their devotion to their sovereign and their duty made them helpless when both were overthrown, leaving them nothing to turn to, nothing to strive for."

"The conquistadores were wise in their hateful way when they put forth the resources of cruelty to outrage the feelings of the people and stamp terror in their hearts."

VALUE OF GRASSES.

They Are In a Measure the Most Useful Plants in the World.

Probably the grasses are the most useful plants in the world. It may be that more than half the individual plants in the world are grasses. It is a great family of more than 3,500 species, embracing species that are so tiny that they hardly reach an inch in height and giant bamboos of the tropics that sometimes grow to be 100 feet or more.

Corn is a giant grass, and wheat, rye, oats, barley, rice and sugar cane are all grasses. Then there are millets, sorghum, Kaffir corn, broom corn—all grasses.

The number of species of grasses is enormous, yet we have adopted into our system of agriculture but a few sorts. In part that is due to the ease or difficulty of seedling grasses. Timothy grass, for example, is so easily sown and the seed so easily gathered that it is almost set of any and has become the standard hay grass of northern climes.

In some regions of Kentucky blue grass is the almost universal pasture grass because it comes in of itself. In other regions with different soil (poor and lacking in lime) redtop has possession. Naturally the farmer follows the line of least resistance, yet it is by no means certain that he has adopted into his agriculture all the best grasses that nature has provided. Some day we shall do more toward using now neglected grasses. — Joseph E. Wing in "Meadows and Pastures."

The Glacial Epochs.

Several times in recent years it has been observed that great explosive volcanic eruptions (Kraakatoa, Pele, Katmai) by changing the upper atmosphere in the isothermal region with fine dust have markedly diminished the amount of solar radiation received at the earth's surface. It seems evident, according to Professor W. J. Humphreys, that the effect of this process must be to reduce the temperature of the air near the earth, since the dust scatters a great amount of the solar radiation. Thus a period of excessive volcanic activity, if long continued, will produce the thermal conditions of an ice age. The geological record is said to furnish evidence that such a period actually began shortly before the last ice age and has continued with diminishing intensity to the present time.

Changing Tastes in Perfumes.

Perfumes were in common use in the ancient world, but it is curious to notice how views have changed as to the pleasantness or otherwise of various odors. The smell of aloes is now considered disagreeable by the majority of people, but in the old days aloes, both as solid extract and as wood, formed a staple perfume or aromatic. Saffron, too, was the most popular perfume of the Romans and was much in favor in England until about the sixteenth century. But who would tolerate the smell of saffron about house or person nowadays?—London Chronicle

The Old Time Foundry.

An auctioneer at a late sale of an antiquities put up a helmet with the following candid observation:

"This, ladies and gentlemen, is a helmet of Romulus, the Roman founder, but whether he was a brass or iron founder I cannot tell." — St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Fault of the Auto.

Hiram—The doctor says Ezra is suffering from auto-intoxication. Silas—Guess that's it, b'gosh! The feller acted just like any one else until he got that automobile. —Judge.

Theatrical Note.

"Hist!" whispered the villain, creeping stealthily away.

"I expected you would be," rejoined the stage manager, with curling lip.

VALUE OF OIL AND COTTON SEED MEALS

The chemical composition of linseed oil meal and cottonseed meal given in terms of digestible nutrients is as follows: Linseed oil meal, protein 30.2 pounds, carbohydrates 32 pounds, fat 6.9 pounds; total nutrients 77.7 pounds; cottonseed meal, protein 37.6 pounds, carbohydrates 21.4 pounds, fat 9.6 pounds; total nutrients, 90.6 pounds.

It will be observed that the chemical composition of these two feeds is much the same. Says Hoard's Dairyman—that is, they are rich in protein and fat, cottonseed meal containing a little more total nutrients than oil meal and being richer in both protein and fat.

Linseed oil meal has other qualities to commend itself to the feeder than simply its composition. Experiments have shown that when animals are kept upon dry feeds a handful to a pound of oilmeal daily to each animal helps keep the digestive tract in good condition—that is, it helps keep the bowels loose. Where silage, roots or any succulent feed is fed oilmeal is not particularly necessary from this standpoint.

Cottonseed meal, as shown by its composition, is a splendid feed and can often be used when there is a lack of protein. One to two pounds daily may be incorporated in the ration to advantage, especially with farm grown grains. It is somewhat constipating and does not work into a ration as well as linseed oil meal when there is no succulence.

The pure bred Holstein bull Johanna Korndyke De Kol F., here-with shown, heads the herd at the Minnesota Insane asylum. For several years the policy of introducing pure blood and testing out the loafers has been followed at the institution. The result has been that more than twice as much milk is produced from a herd numbering only half as many cows as under the former haphazard methods. The present herd is composed of pure bred and grade Holsteins and for four months averaged over four gallons of milk per cow per day.

Cottonseed meal has a tendency to produce a firmer bodied butter. If fed in too large quantities the butter will have a tallowy appearance. On the other hand, linseed oil meal has a tendency to produce a soft butter. When there is an abundance of alfalfa and clover it is somewhat doubtful whether or very much, if any, of either of these feeds can be used to advantage, for, as a rule, where protein is not needed and the dietetic effect upon the animal's digestion is not required they are rather more expensive than some other feeds which may be selected.

A mixture consisting of 600 pounds ground corn and cob meal and 200 pounds cottonseed meal will go very well with an allowance of thirty pounds of corn silage and a liberal allowance of alfalfa and clover given daily to each animal. One pound of this grain mixture to each three and a half to four pounds of average testing milk produced should give very good satisfaction.

We believe, however, that if the corn and cob meal could be mixed with some lighter feed, like distillers' grains, brewers' grain or bran, it would give as good results, if not better, for the feeds we have mentioned would lighten the grain portion of the ration, which we believe is of more importance, since there are sufficient elements of every kind in the other feeds to meet the requirements of the animal.

Preventing Sore Shoulders.

The best cure for sore shoulders is never to cause them, says W. F. Purdue. Work sanely and give the collar and harness proper attention, then sore shoulders will be avoided. One of the first things to do at the beginning of a season of hard work is to see that all collars fit their wearers comfortably. Then keep the parts of the collars that touch the skin clean and smooth or free from rough places such as are formed by accumulations of sweat and dirt that have dried on the leather. Remove all such accumulations before they have time to harden. Keep the traces even, so that each shoulder does its fair share of the work. Keep the lines so fixed that the animals work with their heads straight in front and not on one side. It is little things like these that mark the difference between a good teamster and a poor one.

The Cow at Calving Time.

Up to a few days before calving the cows may remain in their stalls, provided they are large enough for them to have plenty of room to lie down, for this is an important consideration when the cows are heavy in calf. Before her time for calving she should be removed from her stall to a box stall, and in no case allow her to remain in a stall by the side of the other cows that are in calf.

The peony is one of the oldest of the known cultivated flowers. It is mentioned as far back as the days of Troy, when one of her physicians used the roots of the plant for medicine. Later the seeds were taken just before going to bed to prevent nightmare. The roots of the plant have been used until recent times as a medicine. Today there are in cultivation 2,000 named varieties. Among the varieties most highly prized are the Festiva Maxima, La Tulipe, Baroness Schroeder, Mme. Le Moine and Couronne d'Or.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of our darling daughter, Ozelah, who died one year ago, March 30, 1912.

Although she is absent from us, And a weary year has fled, Since we stood by her side in sorrow, And knew our darling was dead, We love her to-day, yes we love her, Just as well as we did years ago, And we miss her, ah yes we miss her, And our hearts are still aching so, But one thought came to us in our sadness, She is free from all sorrow and pain, And we trust when our journey is ended We will meet our loved one again.
